NOTES TO THE CONDUCTOR

This arrangement is played in a moderately slow swing tempo. The eighth notes are swung throughout the arrangement. My comments apply to both low and high versions of this chart. Be sure that all of the players have either the low or high side up to avoid what I call a musical “train wreck.”

Observe the articulation in the introduction but don't play the staccatos too short, play them just a little “fatter” than traditional staccatos. Also, make sure the saxes don't rush the triplets—relax. Saxes add some style to measure 24; play the triplet relaxed and scoop the first note together as a section, then the entire band has this same figure in measure 28. Make sure the band plays the “and” of 4 in measure 33 as a unit—listen and think as one.

Special attention should be paid to the dynamic markings, especially with the brass entrances in measure 21 and again in 53.

There is a tenor sax solo beginning in measure 43 in the low (female) version and an alto solo in the high (male) version. The melody of the song is written on the part in case the soloist does not know the melody, and the chord changes are also provided for players who are interested in improvising.

Please observe the breath mark in measure 61. Release the dotted quarter note right on beat 4, allowing for a space before attacking the fall-off on the and of 4, which will provide more energy to the eighth note on the “and” of 4.

Enjoy!
