Tunbridge Meadows

By Mark Williams

Tunbridge Meadows is an expressive, lyric evocation of the English countryside. The introductory theme, in the clarinets, should be unhurried and allowed to “sing” over the ensemble. The legato quarter notes in measure [2], and elsewhere, should be stretched as much as possible without adding time to the measure.

At measure [17], the allegro eighth notes should be crisp, with no hint rushing. The allegro main theme should be bold, in the style of an English sea chantey.

The coda should be presented in a reflective, restful manner. If the oboe sound is too penetrating in the final chord, try letting the oboe play the B \flat with the flutes.
