PROGRAM NOTES

The Adventure Begins is surprisingly straightforward and unabashedly cheerful. I was happy when I wrote it, and happy music was the result. The composition simply reflects my delight in traveling to new places and allowing myself to take in the sights and sounds of somewhere I haven't been, but will remember forever. It was written immediately after finding out I was given the opportunity to travel to Europe conducting and performing with our university band and orchestra. Every trip is a new adventure, and I hope this kind of joy never fades or becomes jaded with time.

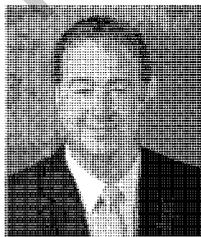

REHEARSAL SUGGESTIONS

- * The composition should begin out of silence - take care on the initial entrance to avoid heavy articulations or too much weight on the timpani.
- * The clarinet ostinato is most effective when the staccato notes are played just long enough to hear the note itself. A slight "lean" (stopping just shy of an accent) will help the first note of each slur.
- * Whole note chords need to be carefully balanced at m. 9. Feel free to experiment with rebalancing trombone and baritone parts to achieve good resonance here and at the end.
- * Starting at m. 39, make sure the woodblocks are played with mallets that allow for tone more than impact. Hard yarn mallets might provide a really nice sound, but avoid hard plastic mallets and snare sticks. If you use temple/granite blocks instead of woodblocks, please use the 2nd and 4th blocks to provide the cleanest interval and timbre between pitches.
- * M. 118 to the end provides this composition's greatest challenge: a fade to near-total silence. Your snare player can accomplish this by gradually clicking the sticks closer to the tip as the final decrescendo occurs.

Thank you for programming The Adventure Begins! - I hope you and your audiences enjoy it!
