PROGRAM NOTES

This charming holiday novelty piece opens with Bavarian-style folk melodies. As the picture of the workshop is painted by the melodies, we become acquainted with the "toys" as portrayed by all members of the band--winds, brass and percussion. Percussionists quickly alternate between traditional and accessory instruments while winds and brass add humor with glissandos, color punches, and imitation.

REHEARSAL SUGGESTIONS

A tempo of 92 beats per minute for the quarter note is appropriate, but select a pace that permits clear definition and clean playing of the melodies. The primary melody is stated by the upper woodwinds and is restated with the addition of the trumpets. This melody is lively and articulations are important as they create proper style. At m. 25, be sure the melody contrasts with the previous phrases. This line should be legato and also played at a softer dynamic level. Later (m. 45) the initial melody reappears in variation with florid woodwind and xylophone figures.

The "toys" begin appearing at m. 61 after all the folk-style melodies have been introduced to the audience. If the band does not have some of the suggested percussion toys, please feel free to make appropriate substitutions. The piece concludes with a restatement of the primary melody by the full band with a fun-to-play countermelody in the horns and alto saxophones with percussion antics continuing to the end.

I hope you enjoy The Toymaker's Workshop. Glucklich beim spielen!
(Happy playing!)
